I. Management of Conflict of Interest

As the Group representative, it is important to preserve fairness and independence of official decision making, at all times. Col situations do not necessarily indicate corruption or wrongdoing. However, if not managed appropriately, such situation can compromise a professional integrity or may lead to potential fraud situation.

On receipt of disclosure of actual or potential Col situation, the above mentioned nodal officers will submit a report to the Head – Corporate Risk and Compliance with a copy to Vice Chairman & Managing Director, and Chief Operating Officer (COO). The report shall summarise:

1. Whether the Conflict of Interest exists.
2. Nature of Conflict of Interest.

If the Conflict of Interest is found to exist, the management of the Group will provide an individual with an opportunity to resolve the Col situation, where circumstances so permit. The individual involved must cooperate to achieve a resolution to the conflict issues in the best interest of the Group. This may include the individual being reassigned to other work/project or removed from the decision making authority with respect to the conflict situation, depending upon nature of the conflict. The resolution of the conflict will be at the discretion of the management of the Group.

Employees having fiduciary responsibilities – such as procurement should disclose to appropriate person (preferably his/ her line manager) private interests, past, present and future relationship that may result in actual or potential Col. Such disclosures will enable the managers to advise their team members on steps to appropriately manage risks through recusals, transfer of duties, etc.

For managing Col in Procurement, please refer guidelines on “Managing Conflict of Interest in Procurement of Services”. The same is annexed with this Policy as Annexure B.

J. Awareness Training

To ensure that all staff members are aware of their responsibilities regarding Conflict of Interest, a plan for dissemination and awareness of this Policy among all employees of the Group is critical. In this regard, Head – Corporate Risk and Compliance shall identify actual or potential organisational and personal COI situations and disseminate them to each staff member.

Examples

John is procurement specialist for an ADB funded project been undertaken by IPE Global Limited. He is required to develop a tender for an Outreach Programme to be conducted under the project. Until three years ago, John worked was self-employed as a 'PR' consultant, having worked for a number of different companies in various capacities, for their public and outreach activities. He hasn't really kept in touch with former colleagues, although suspects many of them are still there. He appreciates that it is a rapidly changing and highly competitive industry and wonders if any of his former employers will tender.

How to identify conflict of interest?

Even though John hasn't kept in touch with his former colleagues, he may be perceived to have friends/associates still in the business, who could influence his ability to be impartial in carrying out his duty to award the best tender.

After three years absence, John may no longer have current 'inside' knowledge but does he (or the Group) stand to gain (or lose) now or in the future from his involvement in the tender process?

Would John be comfortable in defending his involvement in the tender process if an unsuccessful tenderer went to the ADB/ Client and started asking questions about John's previous connections? The perception of a conflict of interest could undermine the Client's confidence in the Group Company and cast doubt on its objectivity.

How to manage conflict of interest?

Regardless of whether John continues to be involved in the tender, he should disclose his conflict of interest to his line manager.

It may be prudent to restrict his involvement by refraining from being part of the decision making once the tender specifications have been developed. Alternatively, the organisation may engage an independent person to oversee the process.

If feasible, it may be wise for John to recuse himself from this particular tender process altogether.

K. Interpretation of the Policy

This Policy cannot describe all COI situations that may arise involving the Group. Therefore, employees (and other individuals) must use their respective good judgment to avoid any appearance of impropriety.

If any individual has any question whether a transaction or course of conduct constitutes conflict of interest, it is the responsibility of that individual to obtain an advice from his/her line manager and act in accordance with that advice. Alternatively, the concerned individual can get in touch with the nodal officers listed under point (H) above or write to Head – Corporate Risk and Compliance (spanda@ipeglobal.com) to clear any misconceptions.

L. Policy Revisions

Any revisions in this Policy including amendments or changes under respective clauses will be duly notified to employees through email communication. Also, such revised Policy or notification/ circular/ internal communication on such revisions will be updated in the library section of EmployWise (HR ERP) and Corporate Website (www.ipeglobal.com). The employee shall be deemed to have read, understood and acknowledged the changes thereof which will supersede the terms of current Policy or any subsequent document/communication related to the Policy.

MANAGING CONFLICT OF INTEREST IN PROCUREMENT OF SERVICES

These guidelines are meant for managing Conflict of Interest (CoI) in procurement of services under different procurements being managed by the Group for client financed projects or otherwise. These are applicable to everyone involved with the Group, including employees and suppliers (including consultancy subcontractors).

Definitions

A Vendor for the purposes of these guidelines is a person or a company engaged under a term contract or on a job basis to provide specialist or professional advice and services or to provide any goods/works/services procured by the Group.

Conflict of Interest (CoI) for the purposes of these guidelines is defined as any personal interest which may affect or be seen to affect impartiality in any matter relevant to duties. This expressly includes any family or friends who may benefit or be seen benefit personally, financially or professionally from your position within the Group or any of its projects.

Purpose

The purpose of these guidelines is to ensure that all goods/works/service procurements are a direct result of evaluations which are independent, impartial, and are based on principles of integrity. To ensure this, all evaluators are encouraged to be sensitive to situations that could lead to an actual or perceived conflict of interest and are required to sign a declaration mentioning that they don't have any conflict of interest with any of the vendors they would be evaluating.

The inherent purpose of these guidelines is to minimise the risk arising from Conflict of Interest situation in procurement of services (for example, where a selection has been made to favour a Vendor) and management of supplier/ Vendor (for example, where money loss happens because of poor performance of the Vendor being overlooked by staff of the organisation results).

Procedure

The project staff/evaluator is required to share with Team Leader/Line Manager, any information about conflicts of interest they may face. The concerned Team Leader/Line Manager, where needed, can help deal with the situation—for example by excluding an individual from a particular evaluation and delegate the supervision of relevant evaluation work to other members of project team as appropriate.

The broad areas that lead to potential conflict of interest and must be shared with Team Leader/Line Manager include:

- Staff/Evaluation Team Member is required to evaluate a vendor that s/he (or immediate family members) previously was working with in the last two years or immediate family members are currently working with. Likewise, a staff member is expected to disclose to Team Leader if s/he (or immediate family members) is seeking employment or being considered for employment with any of the Vendors that s/he is evaluating;
- Staff/Evaluation Team Member is required to evaluate a vendor with whom they (or immediate family members) have a personal relationship currently or in a previous capacity any time within two (2) years prior to joining the project. Any current or past financial/commercial interest within the last 2 years needs to be declared;
- Staff/Evaluation Team Member is required to evaluate a vendor that engaged in partnership with another entity in which a project staff member (or immediate family members) had a significant decision making, financial management, or approval responsibility or personal influence or financial stake in a previous capacity any time two (2) years prior to joining the project;

- Staff/Evaluation Team Member is required to evaluate a vendor through which s/he (or immediate family members) stands to benefit directly or indirectly, other than from the tasks to be carried out;
- Staff/Evaluation Team Member is required to evaluate a vendor in which s/he (or immediate family members) is a director, trustee or partner;
- Staff/Evaluation Team Member is required to evaluate a vendor through which s/he is subjected to any other situation that could cast doubt on his or her ability to perform the tasks impartially, or that could reasonably appear to do so in the eyes of a third party.

In each of the above-mentioned cases, Team Leader/Line Manager and Project Management Team would assess the materiality of the conflict of interest and decide whether any action, including removal by the concerned staff member from the evaluation process, is appropriate and necessary. In addition, any potential conflict of interest with the Group does not preclude any firm from bidding but in case it is mentioned upfront, the Group will ensure that concerned staff member is not a part of the evaluation process, as appropriate.

Any conflict of interest which could arise during the evaluation process and/or performance of the Contract must be immediately notified to Team Leader/Line Manager in writing without delay.

Where a Staff/Evaluation Team Member, becomes aware of any such situation which is not reported to Team Leader/Line Manager or where its felt that appropriate action has not been initiated by Team Leader/Line Manager, then the Staff/Evaluation Team Member, should immediately bring the same to the notice of Mr. Sudarshan Panda, Head – Corporate Risk and Compliance (spanda@ipeglobal.com +91 – 9650544955), who would maintain records and investigate such information and inform senior management, to ensure timely corrective action.

DECLARATION

I hereby declare that I have read and understood IPE Global Limited's Conflict of Interest (CoI) Policy and I hereby agree to abide by it.

Neither I nor to my knowledge any member of my family has in the past and presently engaged in any activity that breaches this policy. I undertake to inform designated nodal officer(s) verbally or through email about any issue of CoI that may crop up in future, at an earliest possible stage.
